

Safer Communities Strategy 2023

Acknowledgement of Country

Frankston City Council acknowledges the Bunurong people of the Kulin Nation as the Traditional Custodians of the lands and waters in and around Frankston City, and value and recognise local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures, heritage and connection to land as a proud part of a shared identity for Frankston City.

Council pays respect to Elders past and present and recognises their importance in maintaining knowledge, traditions and culture in our community.

Council also respectfully acknowledges the Bunurong Land Council as the Registered Aboriginal Party responsible for managing the Aboriginal cultural heritage of the land and waters where Frankston City Council is situated.

Executive Summary

About this Strategy

The Safer Communities Strategy provides Frankston City Council with the strategic direction for how we will work with our community and partners over the next ten years to create a safe, fair and inclusive municipality where people feel safe, well connected and empowered to participate in community life.

The Strategy is aligned with the Community Vision, Council Plan and other key Council strategies and has been developed on principles of diversity and inclusion to take a strengths-based approach in building upon Frankston City’s rich community and place-based assets in its aspiration for safer communities.

Our Vision Statement

Frankston City is a safe, fair and inclusive community that values diversity, connection and participation.

Our guiding principles

The following guiding principles underpin and shape our Strategy and set out how we will work to implement our vision for safer communities in Frankston City:

- Aboriginal self-determination and cultural safety
- Gender equity and intersectionality
- Diversity, inclusion and human rights
- Primary prevention focused
- Partnerships and collaboration
- Evidence informed and outcomes focused

Our Strategic Priorities

Our strategic priorities are organised into four long-term outcomes to achieve our aspiration for safer communities in Frankston City. Each strategic priority is supported by primary prevention focused strategies based on what we know works, and will be delivered through initiatives that target areas for where local government policy and planning can best influence safer communities.

OUTCOMES		STRATEGIC PRIORITIES
1	Community strength and connection	Build strong, inclusive and connected communities
2	Healthy and safe behaviours	Strengthen community wellbeing and resilience
3	Well planned and liveable communities	Build well planned liveable environments for safety
		Improve access to safe and secure housing
4	Collaboration, innovation and empowerment	Strengthen leadership, partnerships and community empowerment

About our Safer Communities Strategy

The Safer Communities Strategy 2023-2033 (the Strategy) provides Frankston City Council with the strategic direction for how we will work with our community and partners over the next ten years to create a safe, fair and inclusive municipality where people feel safe, well connected and empowered to participate in community life.

The Strategy identifies our strategic priorities and key strategies to guide Council and its partners in taking collaborative approaches towards four long-term outcomes. These outcomes aspire for our City to be renowned for its well planned, liveable and safe environments with healthy, strong and empowered communities. Together, these outcomes form the foundation for safer communities.

The implementation of this Strategy will support the facilitation of strategic partnerships and enable more integrated and innovative approaches to community safety and crime prevention.

A strengths-based and primary prevention approach

The Strategy has been developed on principles of diversity and inclusion, and takes a strengths-based approach in building upon Frankston City’s rich community and place-based assets in its aspiration for safer communities.

approaches aimed at modifying the physical environment to build strong connections between people and public spaces, improve perceptions of safety and reduce opportunities for crime. They also include social and structural approaches that focus on addressing underlying social and economic causes of crime.¹

The Strategy has adopted crime prevention theory in its development of evidence-based primary prevention strategies that aim to strengthen those protective factors known to reduce risk of offending and unsafe behaviours and improve perceptions of safety. These strategies also include environmental

Enhancing protective factors alongside an understanding of the causes and contexts within which crimes are committed enables crime prevention activities to be targeted more effectively and where they are needed most.²

What are safer communities?

At its core, being safe is a fundamental human right that extends to everyone – we all have the right to feel safe and respected, and to live our lives free from harm, irrespective of our unique attributes such as age, abilities, Aboriginality, culture, gender, sexual orientation, socio-economic situation, religion or faith. Human rights provide a framework for dignity, equality and mutual respect fostering a more just and inclusive society.

Building upon this, safer communities are environments where everyone has the right to go about their daily activities without fear, or risk of harm or injury. Safer communities not only enable people to be safe, but to also feel safe, whether at home, at work or when moving around streets and public places. Safer communities enable people to feel valued and treated in a culturally respectful manner, and have meaningful opportunities to fully and freely participate in community life and decisions that impact them.

Safer communities are also places where people take responsibility for their behaviours and work together to create safe and attractive environments for everyone who lives, works and visits them.

It's important for us to understand that not all people within a community experience the same levels or perceptions of safety. Each person's experiences and perceptions of safety will be influenced by their range of experiences, expectations, characteristics of their identity and background. Fair and inclusive strategies are required to respond to this.

It's also important for us to understand the relationship between crime, fear of crime and feelings of safety and how this impacts individuals and communities. Evidence shows a relationship between crime with greater levels of harm, like violent crime, and feelings of safety and engagement in the community. Due to the risk of significant harm, fear of violent crime is usually greater than actual rates of violent crime.

Safer communities are not just therefore measured by the level of crime within an area. They are also measured by the level of risk of harm or injury, as well as the levels of wellbeing, resilience, community strength, perceptions of public spaces and access to safe and secure housing. They are also measured through an intersectional lens to understand and address the unique needs and experiences of individuals and communities.

Fair and inclusive communities are safer communities

Fair and inclusive communities are essential for safer communities. People must feel safe, respected and free from any form of discrimination to be able to fully and freely participate in social, cultural and civic life within a community.

Fair and inclusive communities are fostered by removing structural barriers and enhancing community building initiatives that enable people to feel included, valued and have their say.

Research shows a strong association between community building and perceptions of safety, and suggests that through pro-social activities that foster community cohesion and connectedness, worry of crime is reduced.³

When people feel more positive about their neighbourhood and feel connection and trust in their community, they are more likely to get involved in community building to address local issues. This has the compounding effect of building capacity to respond to community safety challenges in the future.⁴

While a socially inclusive and cohesive community improves perceived safety by fostering trust and connections, the actual safety that occurs as a result goes on to contribute to a more a cohesive society, building and strengthening each other.⁵

Safer communities takes a whole community

This Strategy recognises safer communities as being a shared responsibility between Victoria Police, all three tiers of government, government agencies, service providers, businesses, community groups and individuals.

A whole-of-community approach involves everyone taking responsibility in contributing towards safer communities. By working together as a whole community, we can be more impactful in building strong and vibrant communities and achieving safer environments for people to live, work and visit.

Safer communities are also a shared responsibility across all areas of Council. We are committed to taking coordinated approaches in delivering our policies, programs and services and broadening our understanding of community needs to strengthen community safety outcomes and improve perceptions of safety.

Federal and State Government	Develops a range of policies and legislation, and provides grant opportunities that aim to reduce crime, improve safety and increase community empowerment.
Local Government	Provides a range of services, programs and activities that contribute to safer communities. Has local laws responsibilities, also contributes through place management and community building. Refers reports of safety concerns from the community to Victoria Police, and seeks advice and collaboration on safety issues.
Victoria Police	The primary law enforcement agency of Victoria, responsible for upholding the law to promote a safe, secure and orderly society.
Service providers	Provides health and social services to the community, including for victims or perpetrators of crime, and vulnerable and marginalised members of the community.
Business, community and individuals	Contributes through safe and responsible behaviours, reporting, helping others and building community connections.

Our vision for safer communities

Frankston City is a safe, fair and inclusive community that values diversity, connection and participation.

Our guiding principles

We have developed six guiding principles to underpin and shape our Strategy and set out how we will work to implement our vision for safer communities in Frankston City.

Aboriginal self-determination and cultural safety	We will recognise that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have the right understanding and knowledge of local community needs, priorities and aspirations to deliver culturally appropriate solutions. We will strive to create and maintain environments that are safe for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, and where all people are treated in a culturally respectful manner.
Gender equity and intersectionality	We will respect and value people without discrimination, regardless of their gender. We will use inclusive language and terms to promote gender equality and inclusion. We will apply an intersectional gender lens to recognise and understand multiple and overlapping forms of discrimination and disadvantage.
Diversity, inclusion and human rights	We will be inclusive, culturally aware and responsive to the needs of individuals in creating safer communities. We will recognise that an individual's identity includes their gender, age, Aboriginality, disability, culture, religion or faith, sexuality and lived experiences. We will respect each person's human right to be treated fairly and have the ability to make genuine choices in their lives.
Primary prevention focused	We will work to address the underlying cause of crime and harm to stop them before they occur through primary prevention strategies that build community strength and resilience.
Partnerships and collaboration	We will partner and collaborate with the community and a diverse range of stakeholders to understand the needs and aspirations of our community. We will work together taking a whole-of-community approach and collectively work towards common goals for the greatest impact.
Evidence informed and outcomes focussed	We will use evidence to design, implement and improve our work. We will integrate best available research with peoples' lived experience to be responsive to evolving community needs. We will demonstrate measurable outcomes through evaluation and performance measurement.

Our outcomes and strategic priorities

Our strategic priorities are organised into four long-term outcomes. Each strategic priority is supported by primary prevention focused strategies based on what we know works, and will be delivered through initiatives that target areas for where local government policy and planning can influence safer communities.

Context

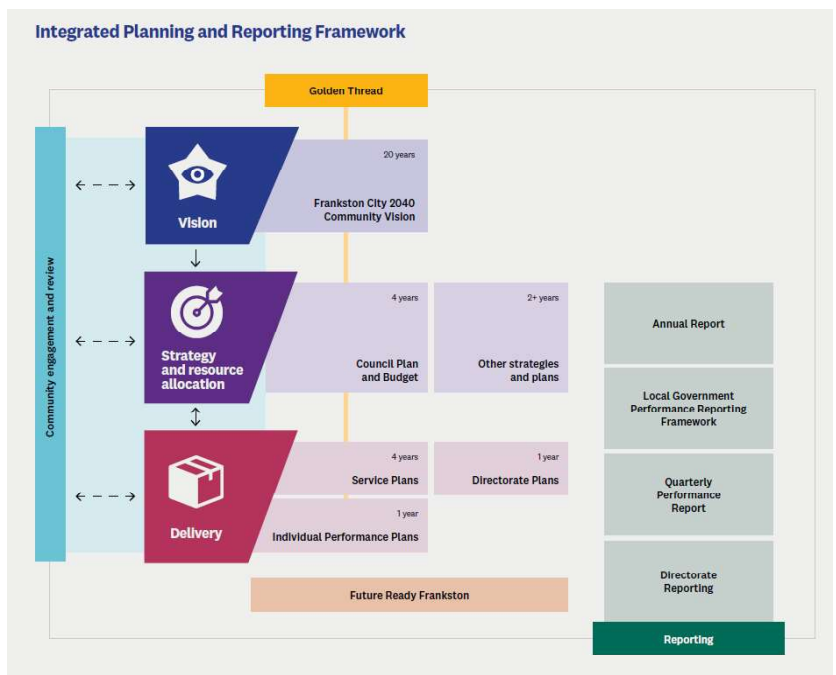

Frankston City Council is taking an integrated planning approach to the development of its policies, strategies and plans to ensure that we are working towards a set of shared outcomes that incorporate our community’s long-term aspirations for the future of the municipality.

Our integrated planning approach

Council’s integrated planning approach has been formalised through the introduction of our Integrated Planning and Reporting Framework. This Framework connects our community’s long-term aspirations in the Community Vision 2040 with Council’s long-term resourcing strategies and medium term strategic plans and policies, in particular the Council Plan and Budget (see Figure 1).

The connection between the Community Vision 2040, Council Plan and all other strategies, policies and plans forms a ‘golden thread’ through our plans to strengthen our journey towards achieving our shared outcomes.

Community Vision 2040

The Community Vision 2040 is our community’s long-term vision and aspirations for the future of our City, providing a description of what our community wants for the future of our municipality, in terms of its look, feel and liveability. The Community Vision 2040 sets the direction for our whole community, inspiring us all to work together to create a future for our City that our community wants to see, live and experience. Our community vision is:

Frankston City 2040 is the place on the bay to learn, live, work and play in a vibrant, safe and culturally inclusive community. Our City is clean, green and environmentally responsible.

Our shared outcomes

This Strategy supports the delivery of our Council Plan 2021-2025 and Community Vision 2040, forming part of the 'golden thread' contributing towards achieving our shared outcomes.

This connection with our shared outcomes continues its journey from this Strategy to other plans, where the Strategy's priorities and key strategies will be resourced for implementation.

Planning with an intersectionality lens

Intersectionality refers to the way that different characteristics of a person's identity can expose them to multiple layers of discrimination and marginalisation.⁶

Attitudes, systems and structures in society and organisations can interact to create inequality and result in exclusion. These include sexism, racism, homophobia, biphobia, transphobia, intersex discrimination, ableism, ageism and stigma.⁷ When these characteristics intersect, there is greater risk of being exposed to discrimination and marginalisation.

Research tells us that intersectionality can result in increased risk of social isolation, harm and crime. It also tells us that experiences and perceptions of safety are impacted by gender and other intersecting characteristics of a person's identity, and that feeling and being safe in our community is not shared equally.

For example, women are much more likely than men to be a victim of family violence. Furthermore, women with disability are almost twice as likely as women without disability to have experience physical or sexual violence by a cohabiting partner over a 12-month period.⁸

It is vital we look beyond the population as a whole to better understand the unique needs and experiences of different sub-population groups and identities in working towards safer communities.

an intersectional gender lens, and considers the disproportionate safety risks that may be experienced within our community by the following groups as a result of attitudes, systems and structures creating inequality and exclusion:

This Strategy has been informed by careful examination of the data through

Women	Older people	Young people
Culturally and linguistically diverse communities	Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities	LGBTQIA+ communities
		People with disability

Policy context

Creating safer communities in Frankston City involves Council operating within a policy structure that includes Council’s own strategies, policies and plans (see Figure 2), as well as broader Federal and State Government policies, and the global human rights context.

The Federal and State Governments are responsible for developing laws, legislation and the overarching strategies and frameworks that guide public health, safety and crime prevention activities at a national or state level. They deliver and fund key services and supports such as health, education, transport and police.

The Federal and State Governments also both have statutory responsibilities in emergency planning. As such, local government is strongly influenced and directed by Australian and Victorian legislation, policies and plans (see Figure 3 for a full list).

The role of local government in safer communities

Local government plays an important role in helping to create safer communities. Whereas crime prevention is primarily the responsibility of state government, local government can make a significant contribution through its responsibilities and functions, as well as its understanding of local needs and partnerships to facilitate local solutions.

This Strategy will strive to ensure that Frankston City is a safe, fair and inclusive community that values diversity, connection and participation by fulfilling the following roles:

Deliver	Deliver: community, family and health services; infrastructure and community assets, including libraries, community centres and kindergartens; and arts and cultural programs, festivals and events.	Partner	Facilitate partnerships and collaborative action between stakeholders to strengthen outcomes.
Planner	Plan services, land use, public and open spaces, community infrastructure, climate change adaptation and social change.	Advocate	Work with other stakeholders to advocate for legislative reforms, policy changes and increased resourcing to meet local needs.
Place manager	Place manage, maintain and activate council-owned facilities, property, assets and open spaces.	Community builder	Build community strength through community development, community grants, support for community and sporting groups and community engagement.
Compliance and safety	Uphold compliance with local laws and state government regulations for food safety, alcohol and smoke free outdoor areas, building codes, parking and traffic management. Develop emergency management plans in partnership with other agencies.	Employer	Employ a skilled and capable workforce and support the development of staff to deliver high quality services to the public.

Council has an ongoing commitment to working in partnership in order to deliver improved safety outcomes for the community.

Our key partners for the implementation of this Strategy include (but are not limited to) the following:

Local Safety Committee	Brings together representatives from Victoria Police, Frankston City Council, government agencies, shopping centre managers, Neighbourhood Watch and others to collaborate in working towards improving community safety for a safe and inclusive community.	Municipal Emergency Management Planning Committee	Brings together representatives from Victoria Police, Frankston City Council, emergency services, emergency relief providers and community health services to maintain the Municipal Emergency Management Plan for Frankston City.
Emergency services	Includes Victoria Police, VicSES, Country Fire Authority and Fire Rescue Victoria.	Emergency relief providers	Includes Community Support Frankston, Australia Red Cross and local support and relief agencies.
Bunurong Land Council Aboriginal Corporation	The area’s Registered Aboriginal Party and Traditional Owner organisation representing the Bunurong people of the South-Eastern Kulin Nation.	Government departments and agencies	Including (but not limited to): Department of Health; Department of Transport; Department of Families, Fairness and Housing; Department of Environment, Land and Planning; VicRoads; Emergency Management Victoria; and Sports & Recreation Victoria.

How this strategy was developed

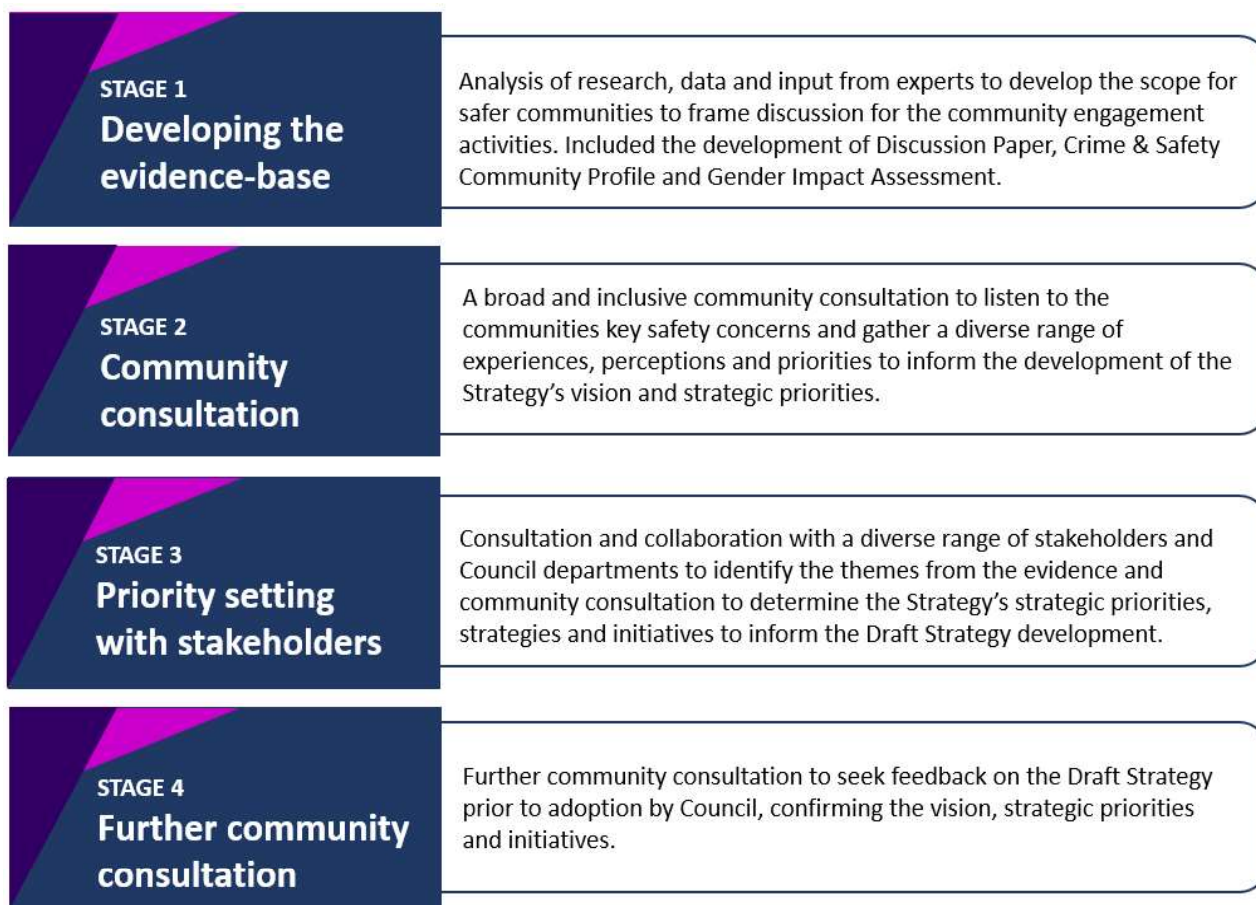

This Strategy has been developed through a collaborative process with the community and a diverse range of stakeholders, along with extensive research and data analysis to gain insight into the current crime and safety issues impacting our community.

The development of this Strategy took place over four key stages of engagement, as outlined at Figure 4. A review was also undertaken of national, state and local policy influencing safer communities, along with evidenced-based crime prevention and safety approaches.

A Gender Impact Analysis (GIA) was conducted to analyse the research and data through an intersectional gender lens to identify the safety issues as experienced by different population groups in the community. The GIA found that gender inequality significantly impacts women's safety and wellbeing and highlighted the need for this Strategy to contain strategies and initiatives that promote attitudes, behaviours and social norms that normalise gender equality and prioritise the individual, social and economic needs of Frankston City's diverse community, increasing visibility, inclusion and community support of diversity.

Community engagement

In preparing this Strategy we sought an understanding of our community’s key safety concerns, what action Council could take to address these and their vision for safer communities.

We engaged with the community through online surveys, pop-up consultations in Frankston’s City Centre and in reserves and social media posts. A Mini Frankston City workshop was also held to explore some of the key issues in further detail.

To seek a diverse and inclusive range of views and experiences we held targeted workshops and attended community events to engage with the following networks:

- Local Safety Committee
- Municipal Emergency Management Planning Committee
- Child and Family Partnership
- Family Violence Network
- Disability Access and Inclusion Committee

- Youth Council
- Positive Ageing Ambassadors
- LGBTQIA+ Collaborative

We also engaged with a range of other stakeholders, like Monash University and Taskforce.

Overwhelmingly, the safety of public spaces was identified as the top safety concern by our community. Concerns primarily related to feelings of safety in public spaces, particularly at night, while using public transport and in Frankston’s city centre. Much of this concern focused on fear of being the victim of crime, assault or harassment. Concerns also related to the amenity of public spaces and how lighting, graffiti and cleanliness impact perceptions of safety.

Our community engagement was conducted on six discussion topics, with the main safety concerns identified by the community for each topic being as follows:

1. Safe and resilient communities	2. Safety in public spaces	3. Harm reduction
Safety of vulnerable people during extreme weather events and emergencies Safety and inclusion of emergency relief centres Long term social and economic impacts of emergency events	Safety of public spaces at night Personal safety in Frankston’s city centre, parks and reserves Road safety Lighting, cleanliness and graffiti	Harms from alcohol, drugs or gambling within the community People having access to support services Impact of crime and violence

4. Safe and respectful relationships	5. Reducing homelessness	6. Safe and inclusive communities
Violence against women Sexual harassment Attitudes and behaviours that condone violence	Access to safe, secure and affordable housing Health and safety of people experiencing homelessness Access to support services	Community connection Lack of social connection Racism, ageism and other forms of discrimination Neighbourhood trust

When asked our community to describe what a safe community looks and feels like to determine our vision for safer communities, the key themes identified were:

- Feeling safe and secure, both during the day and at night
- Being free from violence, harassment or abuse
- Vibrant and welcoming City
- Connection and sense of belonging
- Kindness, empathy and helping others
- Diverse and inclusive

Figure 5: What our community told us their local community does well and contributes to safer communities

Our community identified some key ways in which Council can take action to help create safer communities. The top five actions identified were as follows:

1. Create and maintain safe and accessible public spaces, parks and reserves
2. Work with specialist support services to assist vulnerable community members
3. Work with emergency services like Victoria Police and the Ambulance Service to respond to community safety issues
4. Work with services and community groups on initiatives to reduce harms from alcohol, drugs and gambling
5. Create and maintain community facilities

Our community profile

Frankston City is located on the eastern shores of Port Phillip Bay within Metropolitan Melbourne, approximately 40 kilometres south of Melbourne CBD. The municipality covers an area of about 131 square kilometres.

Our City is known for its 11 kilometres of pristine coastline, award-winning beaches and natural bushland, vibrant lifestyle and growing business, arts, education and health facilities.

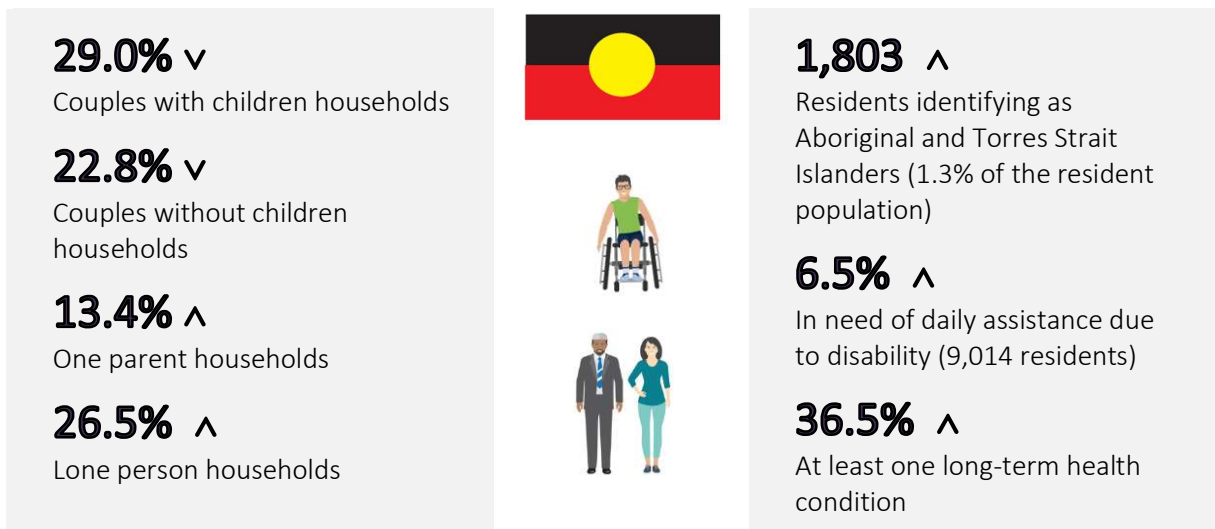

The Traditional Custodians of the land in and around Frankston City are the Bunurong peoples, part of the language group known as the Kulin Nation. The country of the Bunurong peoples extends from Werribee Creek to the Tarwin River and Wilson’s Promontory.

Our community profile has been developed from the .id community profile, which derives statistics from the Australian Bureau of Statistics 2021 Census.

Community safety profile

Over time the crime rate in Frankston City has been declining and perceptions of safety improving. While these improvements are encouraging, Frankston City still experiences ongoing safety issues that impact how our community and visitors participate, engage and move around the City.

Property and deception offences accounted for nearly half of all criminal incidents recorded in Frankston City for 2022, making it the most commonly recorded principle offence. While the rates of property and deception offences are showing a declining trend, the rates of crimes against the person have been declining at a much slower rate and remain to be well above the Victorian average.

Family violence is a significant issue impacting the safety of residents in Frankston City. The rate of family violence incidents recorded by Victoria Police continues to be higher than all other Metro Melbourne areas, and also higher than both the Southern Metropolitan and Victorian averages.

Data recorded by Victoria Police shows that females are three times more likely than males to be the victim of family violence incidents in Frankston City. Nearly half of victims are aged between 25-44 years, and people aged 55+ are increasingly being recorded as the victim.

Perceptions of safety

The Frankston City Annual Customer Satisfaction Survey enables us to track how safe people are feeling in our City. This helps us to identify the areas that may need more investment to improve perceptions of safety and remove barriers for participation. The 2023 survey showed the overall perception of living in Frankston City as being very strong.

However, our community nominated safety, policing and crime as the second top issue for Frankston City, which is an increase from previous years and was a more commonly nominated when compared to the Metro Melbourne average.

Safer Communities Strategy

Outcomes and strategic priorities

Building strong and connected communities

Neighbourhoods and cities thrive when everyone feels safe, valued and included as part of their community. Everyone has the right to feel safe and respected in their relationships and be free from the fear of violence within their homes and in the community.

A welcoming, inclusive and cohesive community where people feel valued and their differences respected enables people to feel safe, enjoy a sense of belonging and able to participate in social, cultural and civic life.

Research shows a strong association between community strength and perceptions of safety. People who trust their neighbours and see them as willing and able to help address local problems are significantly less likely to worry about crime. This demonstrates how community safety strategies that aim to build social capital and community connection can have significant and meaningful benefits to people who worry about crime, as well as to the broader community.⁹ The 2023 Annual Community Satisfaction Survey for Frankston City showed that 56% of residents feel part of their local community, and 61% feel that they can turn to their neighbours for help.

It is against the law to discriminate against someone because of a personal characteristic protected by the law, such as disability, or vilify a person or group of people on the basis of their race or religion or behave in a way that is racially offensive.¹⁰ Victorian adults who frequently experience racism are almost five times more likely than those who do not to have poor mental health.

Feelings and experiences of safety can vary between population groups. An Australian study into perceptions of crime found that women worry more about the risk of physical and sexual assault, while those who spoke a language other than English were more concerned with harassment that derived from discrimination and prejudice.¹¹ The 2023 Annual Community Satisfaction Survey showed that 61% of residents agreed that Frankston City is supportive of people from diverse cultures and backgrounds.

Family violence is a preventable violation of human rights that involves coercive and abusive behaviours designed to intimidate, humiliate, undermine and isolate, resulting in fear and insecurity.¹² It also involves an escalating spiral of violence that can include physical and sexual abuse, as well as psychological, emotional, cultural, spiritual and financial abuse.¹³

Family violence affects all family members, however data shows the majority of victims to be women and their children and the majority of perpetrators to be men. Intimate partner violence is the leading preventable contributor to death, disability and illness in Victorian women aged 15–44.¹⁴ Stopping these forms of violence before they start requires a primary prevention approach.

Our strategies

What we know works

Strengthen respect and value of diversity within the community to prevent discrimination and reduce stigma

Strengthen inclusion, belonging and community connections to improve social cohesion and perceptions of safety

Promote and normalise gender equality to prevent gendered violence and all forms of violence against women, children and older people

Our initiatives

How we will deliver this

Support and promote public events and festivals that celebrate inclusion and diversity to increase visibility, representation and intercultural connections.

Support and promote partnerships and initiatives that showcase the strengths of diverse community groups and build respect and value for diversity within the community.

Acknowledge Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as Australia's Traditional Owners and actively work towards reconciliation.

Deliver targeted action plans to facilitate activities that promote and support social inclusion across the lifespan.

Facilitate opportunities for people to connect with others in their neighbourhood to support people to feel safe.

Promote and support safe and inclusive opportunities for volunteering.

Support local sports clubs, community groups and businesses to embed equality and inclusive practices and create safe and welcoming environments.

Embed a whole-of-council primary prevention response to gendered violence and all forms of violence against women, children and older people.

Strengthen organisational capability to use data for intersectional gender analysis to support the delivery of equitable services and facilities.

Foster collaborative partnerships to deliver education and awareness raising activities and advocacy to promote and normalise gender equality.

Strengthen community wellbeing and resilience

Strengthening community wellbeing and resilience intersect to not only improve the safety of individuals and the broader community, but to also improve mental and physical health. Resilient communities are able to overcome challenges and reduce the risks of harmful and unsafe behaviours to enjoy good wellbeing. But resilience is not something communities can achieve on their own. It requires working together through formal and informal networks and supports, and reaching out to the most vulnerable in our community who are at most risk of isolation, unsafe behaviours and poor health and wellbeing.

Natural disasters and emergencies can have a significant impact on the health and safety of our communities, as well as wide ranging social and economic flow-on effects, some of which may worsen risk factors for crime and unsafe behaviours. These risk factors can be reduced by strengthening community resilience.

Community resilience often refers to the ways in which communities prepare for and respond to natural disasters and emergencies. The capacity of a community to do this is dependent upon having positive social connections and the ability of community members to draw together.

Likewise, harms from gambling, alcohol and other drugs have a significant impact on the health and safety of an individual and the broader community. The misuse of alcohol and other drugs contribute to many health, social and economic harms, including injury, chronic health conditions, road trauma, violence, healthcare and law enforcement costs and can contribute to people remaining trapped in cycles of poverty and disadvantage.

The consumption of alcohol is widespread, with an established drinking culture prevalent within many social and cultural activities. There are 262 licensed premises^{xv} in Frankston City and on average households only have to travel up to 1km from home to reach a packaged liquor outlet.^{xvi}

Gambling is an activity that affects the quality of life of many people, with research linking it to poor mental health, poverty and chronic health conditions. Emerging evidence links gambling with the perpetration of violent and non-violent offences, including domestic and family violence.^{xvii}

Local government plays an important role in balancing the contribution that licenced premises and gaming venues have on the vibrancy and activation of local areas, with the management of the social, economic, health and safety impacts of harms relating to gambling, alcohol and other drugs.

This outcome area is strongly linked to our statutory Health & Wellbeing Plan to encourage a joined up approach to strengthening community wellbeing and resilience in order to improve outcomes in the prevention and minimisation of harms.

Our strategies

What we know works

Engage and support the community to practice safe and responsible behaviours to prevent harm

Collaborate with community services to improve access to support services for people and communities in need

Build community resilience and inclusive recovery to reduce the safety impacts of climate change and emergencies

Our initiatives

How we will deliver this

Deliver targeted education and awareness initiatives to prevent crime and promote safe behaviours.

Work in partnership to minimise the impact of alcohol and other drugs on the community

Support and promote safe environments in council owned facilities to prevent harms from drugs, alcohol and gambling.

Collaborate to deliver programs that promote safe behaviours and encourage participation in alternative recreational activities.

Partner with Victoria Police, emergency services and community groups to strengthen positive relationships with the community.

Collaborate with community organisations to engage the community and encourage participation in programs that provide support and positive pathways.

Raise awareness of how to report crimes and seek assistance.

Partner with emergency services to ensure arrangements are in place to plan for, respond to and recover from emergencies that could occur in Frankston City.

Build partnerships with service providers to identify the vulnerabilities of communities most at risk of being adversely affected by climate change and emergencies and collaborate on culturally safe and inclusive responses.

Educate and empower the community to understand and minimise the impacts of climate change and emergencies, with a focus on those communities most at risk of being adversely affected.

Build well planned and liveable environments for safety

Well planned and liveable communities

Crime and unsafe behaviours are the result of a complex relationship between social and environmental factors and cannot be ‘designed out’. However, good design and activation of public spaces can be part of a broader approach to community safety and crime prevention.

If a public space feels safe, accessible and welcoming and looks attractive, it is more likely to be well used and loved by all members of the community providing visibility and passive surveillance, as well as opportunities for social connection.

The process of creating safe public spaces requires careful consideration of many features, including social, spatial, economic and environmental factors. This includes the use of Crime Prevention through Environmental Design (CPTED), a crime prevention approach used by local government in the urban design of public spaces to create safe and comfortable public spaces that reduce opportunities for crime to occur.

Placemaking is another approach being used locally to activate public places and improve perceptions of safety. This is the collaborative process of creating high quality, attractive and vibrant places that people feel connected to and want to live, work, play and learn in. Placemaking usually involves a combination of short-term activations, like outdoor dining and food trucks, and longer term management of the space and amenity improvements like lighting, signage, street art, play equipment and shade structures.

Graffiti, property damage and illegal dumping of waste and materials are some of the more common illegal activities occurring in public places in Frankston City that can have a detrimental impact to the amenity and perceived safety of an area.

Train stations and public transport stops are often identified as places where people do not feel safe and can be a barrier to the use of public transport, even though public transport is one of the safest ways to travel.

Crime hot spots, small geographical areas where crime and unsafe behaviour clusters, are also places where people do not feel safe and require tailored crime prevention and reduction strategies along with good design and activation.

Similar to crime hot spots, road accident black spots are locations where there has been a number of fatalities and accidents. Council works collaboratively with other stakeholders, such as Victoria Police, state government authorities, local business and the community itself to protect and maintain the safety and amenity of public places and community infrastructure, which includes our roads.

It’s important to note the way we use and perceive the safety of public spaces are unique and specific to our lived experiences. Evidence shows that women are more likely to feel unsafe in public spaces and feel as though a space is not designed with them in mind. This is particularly true for women who experience other intersecting forms of marginalisation.¹⁸

Access to safe and secure housing is considered to be a basic human right. Not having access to housing and being homeless is a significant threat to personal safety, making a person much more vulnerable to crime, violence and abuse.

Homelessness rates in Frankston City are growing and impacting different groups of people. This is resulting from a range of complex and intersecting social, economic and housing market factors. For example, rapidly rising property prices and private rental costs combined with a lack of availability and affordability of housing means that many households are living in housing stress (which occurs when housing costs exceed 30 percent of household income among those on a low income), which in turn increases their risk of falling into homelessness.

The experience of homelessness is not just about having a roof over your head. The Australian Bureau of Statistics defines someone as homeless if their current living arrangement is in a dwelling that is inadequate, has no tenure, has a short and not extendable tenure, or does not allow them to have control of, or access to, space for social relations.

Whereas rough sleeping the most visible form of homelessness it only makes up a small proportion of homelessness, the majority of homelessness is 'hidden'. It includes those in supported accommodation for the homeless, rooming houses, sleeping in cars, severely overcrowded dwellings, couch-surfing or staying in other temporary types of accommodation.

The 2021 Inquiry into Homelessness in Australia highlighted that homelessness can have a profound and long-term impact on a person's safety and security. Research shows that compared to the general population, people who are homeless experience significantly higher rates of death, disability, mental health conditions and chronic illness and are 13 times more likely to have experienced violence and 47 times more likely to have been victims of theft.¹⁹ Visible homelessness can also contribute to broader community perceptions of safety in public spaces.

The ABS Census 2021 shows that in Australia the rates of homelessness are higher for males (55.9%), but 81.7% of the increase of people experiencing homelessness since the last Census were females. Data from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare shows that the top three reasons for people seeking homelessness assistance in Victoria in 2021-22 as being financial difficulties, family and domestic violence and housing crisis.

A 'one size fits all' solution won't solve this issue and requires tailored solutions, including increased access to social and affordable housing and a more effective homelessness service system.

Primary responsibility for homelessness and social housing lies with state and federal governments. Local government has a supporting role through education, advocacy and working in partnership.

Strengthen leadership, partnerships and community empowerment

Creating a safer community is everyone's responsibility. A strong, capable and culturally safe organisation and workforce is best placed to lead and coordinate local partnerships and cross-sector collaboration to help create safer communities. Empowering the community to be actively involved in decision-making not only brings people together with a shared interest, it also builds their capacity to manage future challenges and build resilience.

The community is at the centre of all that Council does, and we believe that the community has the knowledge and expertise to be best placed to know what solutions will be most successful in their neighbourhoods. With the right resources and opportunities, communities can be empowered to actively participate in identifying local safety issues, develop ways to address these and be involved in implementing local initiatives to improve safer communities.

Being involved in the decisions that impact their lives helps build community capacity and resilience to manage their own and others safety. Research shows that being invested in achieving positive outcomes develops a sense of shared responsibility and increased community cohesion.

Integrating our work across Council acknowledges our role and shared responsibility in creating safer communities. This involves the coordination of departmental teams and services, along with external organisations and the community to work in collaboration. Partnerships add value by leveraging the collective expertise, knowledge and perspectives from across multiple sectors to find effective solutions to complex issues. It is through the coordination of people, skills and resources all working toward shared outcomes that has the greatest impact.

The Victorian Crime Prevention Strategy and National Crime Prevention Framework both emphasise the importance of a shared and collaborative approaches as being essential to successful crime prevention strategies. They also highlight and recommend the need for a strong evidence base and use of local data to inform resource allocation, enable outcomes to be measured and an ongoing cycle of continuous improvement.

With a culture built on respect, diversity and inclusion, organisations are more likely to attract and retain staff, employees have improved health and wellbeing, increased productivity and innovation. Diverse and inclusive workplaces encourage open dialogue, collaboration, and the sharing of different perspectives that can enhance customer service, improve communication and build stronger relationships both within the organisation and the community.²⁰

Delivering this Strategy

The successful delivery of this Strategy requires collaborative and integrated approaches, both internally and externally, in taking joined up action to deliver prevention focused strategies and initiatives to achieve the strategic outcomes required for safer communities in Frankston City.

Implementation

The outcomes and strategic priorities outlined in this Strategy will be progressed through the implementation of an Action Plan. The Action Plan contains strategies and initiatives that are prevention-based and outcomes-focused to affect change and impact long-term safety and wellbeing. The strategies and initiatives have a set of actions for how they will be delivered, along with the timeframe within which they will aim to be delivered.

All actions aim to be delivered within the 10-year lifecycle of this Strategy (long term), with action commencing within the short to medium term (1 to 6 years)

The implementation of this Action Plan will be overseen by the Safer Communities Department, however all Council Departments will have a role in its resourcing and implementation.

Monitoring and evaluation

Delivering the Action Plan will be a process of continuous improvement allowing for flexible and responsive implementation. As such, the Action Plan will be reviewed and updated regularly throughout the Plan's 10-year lifecycle, in line with the Council Plan and Integrated Planning and Reporting Framework.

By doing so, Council will have the opportunity to reflect on the way the Action Plan is being implemented and draw upon evidence in order to make improvements and achieve better results.

This review will also accommodate any key policy changes occurring at all levels of government, key service system changes, as well as any changing needs of the community.

The Strategy's outcomes and strategic priorities will be fully evaluated at the end of the 10-years, based on the strategic indicators outlined within the Strategy for how we will measure impact. All indicators that are able to be disaggregated by gender will be.
