Mayor's message

Since being elected as Mayor on 8 November 2018, I have begun to make the most of my term. Following the successful re-election of the Andrews' Government, I have started meeting with relevant candidates to ensure the election commitments are being fulfilled.

I take my role as Mayor very seriously, I'm passionate about Frankston and having the opportunity to lead Council is one of the greatest honours of my life.

This summer we have some amazing free or low-cost events, so there's no excuse not to get out and about with family and friends and enjoy what's on your own doorstep. The Waterfront Festival is our next headline event and is proving to be bigger and better than ever. Please see our double page spread for more details. Tickets are now on sale for the Stellar Short Film Festival on Saturday 2 March at the McClelland Sculpture Park and Gallery, Langwarrin. Make sure you don't miss out on this premium outdoor film festival.

I hope to see you at some of our events and I wish you a safe and enjoyable summer.

Cr Michael O'Reilly
Frankston City Mayor

Message from the CEO

I want to thank the community for your support throughout the past twelve months as we continue to provide services and infrastructure to meet your needs.

It is important that we continue to engage with you on issues that impact on our future, and the support provided by the community during the recent State Election enabled a successful advocacy campaign.

At this time of year take advantage of all the local events that on offer or simply take a walk on our beautiful beach.

We are lucky to have so many natural assets whether it's parks, nature reserves or the beaches. Council in 2019 will continue to work hard on your behalf.

Dennis Hovenden
CEO

Tales from the coal face

As the first point of contact for our residents, our Customer Relations Team expect to encounter upset and angry customers, but no one should have to come to work to deal with abuse, name calling and threats. It's just not fair. Here are some real life experiences from the front line:

"I was told it'd be my fault if a child dies because we couldn't help with overhanging trees on private property"

"I had a customer verbally abuse me at the counter because he couldn't get onto the free wi-fi"

"A resident threatened to kill me over a dumped rubbish complaint"

Please be polite when visiting or calling one of our Customer Service Centres and let's support each other to achieve the best outcome for Frankston.

Rates reminder

Next due dates for instalment payments are:

- Thursday 28 February (3rd instalment)
- Friday 31 May (4th instalment)

Annual rates notice went out in August 2018

Overdue payments from the 1st and 2nd instalments are attracting interest. Please ensure Council has your current mailing address.

Rates can be paid in a number of ways including:

- Online, visit frankston.vic.gov.au/rates
- Phone, 1300 721 138
- BPAY or Australia Post Billpay
- In person at Council's Customer Services Centres
- By mail
- Direct debit, contact Council 1300 322 322 to arrange. Direct debt must be established 10 days before the payment due date. You can also download an application via our website.

Frankston City election results

In our goal towards becoming the Lifestyle Capital of Victoria, Council has been vigorously advocating for funding towards a number of vital projects that will benefit not only Frankston City residents and visitors, but also the Mornington Peninsula and South Eastern regions for years to come.

This has included numerous meetings, letters and the Future Frankston campaign involving key stakeholders and community members, a combined effort that has resulted in over $1 billion worth of funding being committed to Frankston City during the state election campaign.

Frankston City Mayor Michael O'Reilly congratulated the elected Members of Parliament and thanked all candidates for their commitment and investment in Frankston City during the election campaign.

Recently elected local electorate Members of Parliament include:

- Frankston electorate – Paul Edbrooke (re-elected)
- Carrum electorate – Sonya Kilkenny (re-elected)
- Hastings electorate – Neale Burgess (re-elected)

At this year's election we noticed the early voting boom is sweeping across Victoria, with more than a quarter of voters ditching the Election Day sausage sizzle and taking to the polls in the weeks prior.

This is a clear message that candidates need to make their commitments to their electorate early.

Council is continuing its advocacy work post-election to ensure any funding commitments made during the campaign are delivered.

We look forward to working positively with the Andrews Government in the four year term in order to continue Frankston City's transformation.

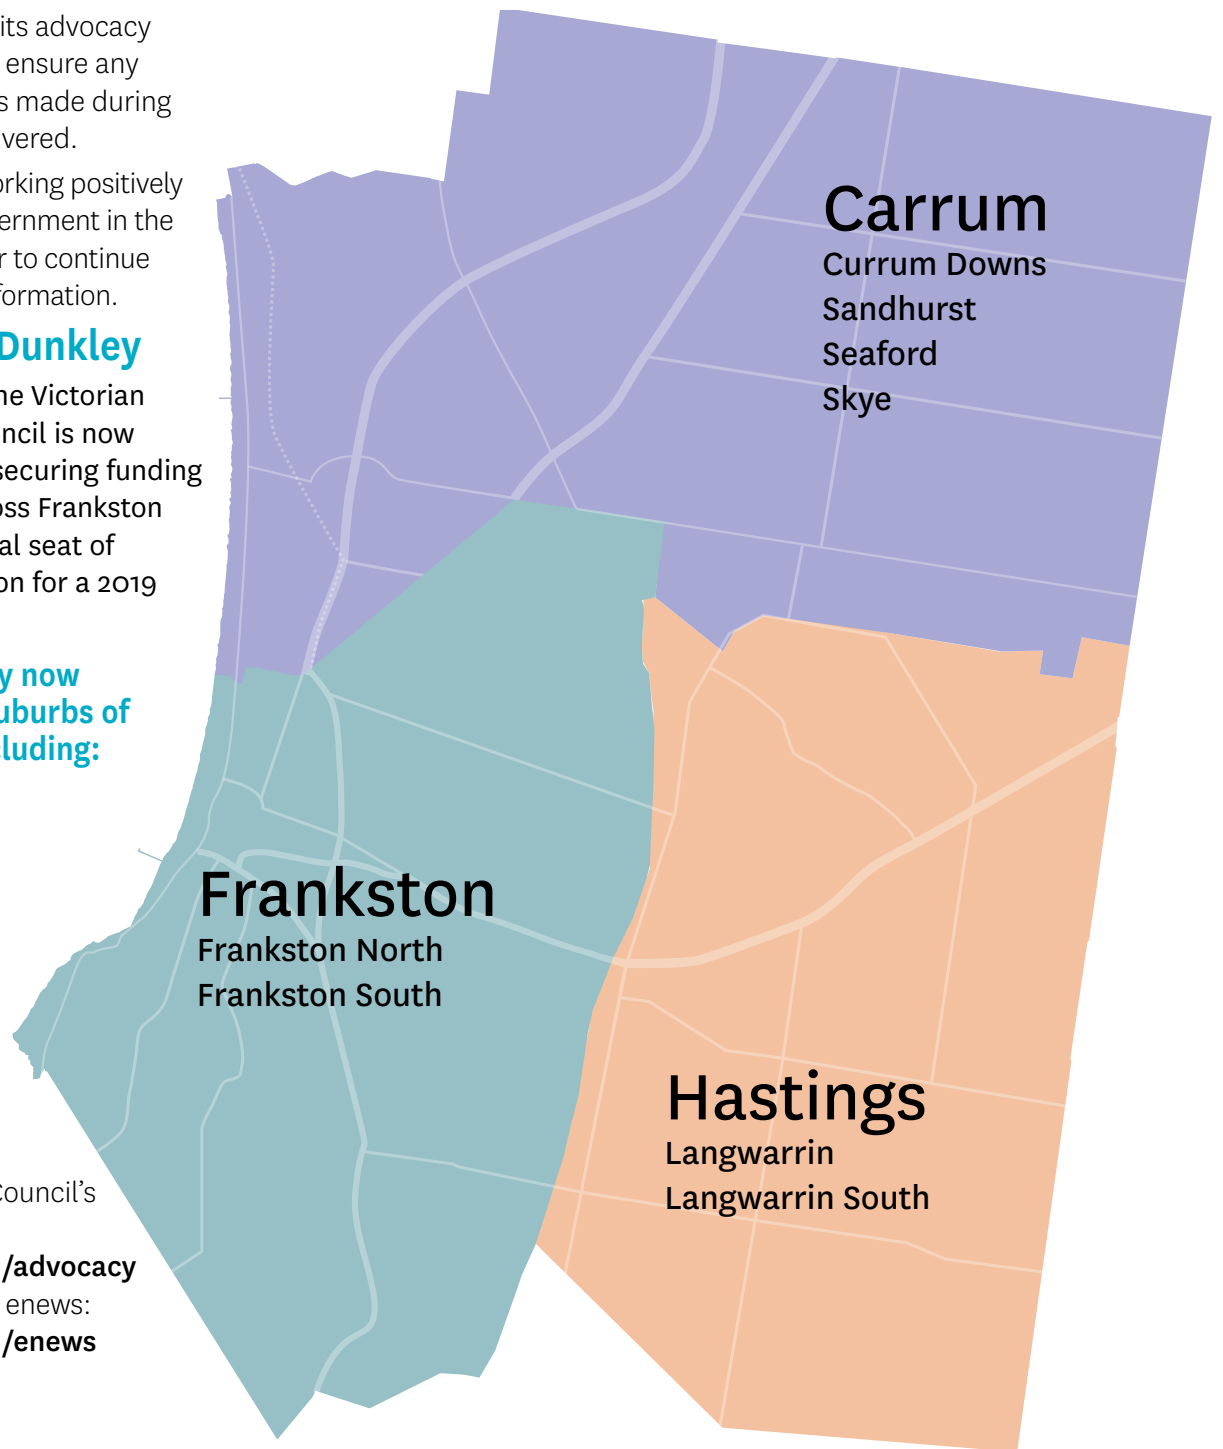

Delivering for Dunkley

With the dust from the Victorian election settled, Council is now setting its sights on securing funding on vital projects across Frankston City within the Federal seat of Dunkley in preparation for a 2019 federal election.

The seat of Dunkley now encompasses all suburbs of Frankston City, including:

- Frankston
- Frankston North
- Frankston South
- Seaford
- Carrum Downs
- Skye
- Sandhurst
- Langwarrin
- Langwarrin South

Launch into 2019 with Lynda.com

Lynda.com is not only your personal business coach, tutor and support system; she is also our dedicated online learning portal.

Since launching in 2018, Lynda.com has helped more than 200 residents grow their business by providing over 6000 FREE online courses.

We caught up with local business owner Emily Jones from Acacia

Wellness to find out how Lynda.com has helped her.

What online courses did you access?

I watched video courses relating to Social Media Marketing. As an experienced holistic practitioner, I hold regular face-to-face workshops offering education around conception, birth and beyond. I wanted to update my skills to communicate my personalised workshops via my social media channels.

How has this made a difference to your business?

It was such an easy resource to access and gave me advice about how better to use social media for promotion of my business. I have noticed an increase in followers and more enquiries based on new techniques that I've adopted.

For more information visit: acaciawellness.com.au

To access the online courses, all you need is a Frankston City Library card. Logon and scroll down to the Free Online Learning link.

Local neighbours enjoying their BBQ packs on Neighbour Day.

Did you know...?

54 per cent of residents think their neighbourhood is close-knit. Let's raise the average by building community spirit on Neighbour Day.

Love where you live

Would you like to be part of a shared community project that connects you with people from your local suburb?

Langwarrin and Seaford are both set to embark on a project titled 'Stories of Langwarrin' and 'Stories of Seaford'. Frankston Heights and Central Frankston are going to create pop-up veggie boxes.

Projects for Karingal, Frankston South, Frankston North, Carrum Downs, Sandhurst and Skye launch soon.

A place to play

The Langwarrin Community Centre has been working with the local Men's Shed to create a cubby and mud kitchen for the centre.

The community centre provides quality childcare within a fun and supportive environment from occasional care, pre-kinder to outside of school hours care. With the centre's emphasis on community participation, this joint initiative with the Men's Shed was a perfect fit for Langwarrin.

Council's Children's Services Team requested extra play equipment after consultation regarding revamping the outdoor area at the centre. The Langwarrin Men's Shed was approached to create a cubby and mud kitchen because the centre wanted to create a space that ignited the children's imaginations.

Both playspaces allow children to develop their communication and sharing skills as they collaborate about how they use the space.

The Langwarrin Community Centre looks forward to many delicious concoctions made in the mud kitchen and the observations in the bush cubby such as bug and bird watching.

Members of the Langwarrin Men's Shed who designed and built the play equipment from recycled materials.

Be connected

Ever wanted to piece together the puzzle of the internet and get smarter on your smartphone, iPhone, iPad or computer?

Langwarrin Men's Shed is offering 'Be Connected', a federal government initiative giving technical support to over 50s. The aim is to promote safety and confidence online.

The program is open on Tuesdays, 1.30–4pm and Thursdays, 10am–12pm. It's open to all over 50s and is supported by a dedicated technical group that offer support freely.

George Pentland Botanic Gardens

George Pentland Botanic Gardens is located approximately 1km from both the Frankston Waterfront and the city centre. It was originally a nine-hole golf course that was transformed into the botanic gardens in 1975. Now home to a large array of native trees, palms and shrubs it's a great place to relax or play within a tree shaded environment.

Under the shade of the coastal tea-tree

The coastal tea-trees (Leptospermum laevigatum) are indigenous to Frankston and are believed to be the oldest, original species in George Pentland Botanic Garden. Some probably witnessed a time when this part of Frankston was natural bushland. The older trees develop a gnarled, twisted wood that is characteristic of this plant and makes a great natural playground to explore.

Nature or nurture

'Natured Kids' is an outdoor playgroup, founded by registered teacher and nature enthusiast, Narelle Debenham. We caught up with Narelle to ask her a few questions.

What makes the George Pentland Botanic Gardens a destination for you?

The gardens have always been a special place for me. My grandmother would regularly let me explore the native flora and fauna as a child and now I enjoy sharing my deep connection to this magnificent space with local families and their young children.

Why is encouraging outdoor play so important?

It's essential for our children's healthy development and wellbeing. Exploring outdoors with your children gives them opportunities to thrive, learn and develop a lifelong thoughtfulness for our natural environment.

While you're having fun in nature, please take care not to hurt yourself or any of the many other living things that share this special space.

'Natured Kids' runs regularly in various local locations. For more details phone 0431 791 379 or visit: naturedkids.com

Explore nature with your children:

- Play hide-and-seek amongst the twisted tea tree
- Pretend you are a dinosaur roaming through the fern gully
- Locate the Aboriginal totem poles. Can your children identify the creatures and move like the animals?

Did you know...?

We've had new information signs installed around the gardens for you to learn more about the native flora and fauna.

A new play space sprouts up

A unique play space opened in December 2018 at the Foot Street end of the botanic gardens. The main feature is an amazing 'Sprout' play sculpture designed by Melbourne sculptor Damian Vick. The two weathered steel trees sprout different play equipment including scramble nets, a tube slide and a disc climb. The sculpture which complements the natural environment also includes a storytelling circle, sand play zone and a swing carousel.

Community solar projects shine

Council has installed 14 solar power systems and one solar battery storage system on our community buildings with funding assistance from the Australian Government's Solar Communities program.

A total of 91 kilowatts of solar capacity has been installed, which is expected to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by around 140 tonnes each year to help mitigate climate change.

The local groups will be able to reinvest these savings into other important community services.

This project helps progress our bid to become carbon neutral by 2025 and assist in reducing rising energy costs for both Council and our tenants.

Book a Court

If the Australian Open is inspiring you to pick up a tennis racquet this summer, it's time to take to the court. Getting on court with your friends and family has never been easier with Book a Court.

With so many places to play tennis in Frankston City, there is a club near you.

Simply head to the Book a Court website, select the club, and book in your time. When you get to the gate, key in your pin code and enjoy your game.
